Dear Dr. Wei,

I'm writing this e-mail to express my gratitude for your professional services and as a testimonial that hopefully may aid others in making a decision when seeking help for their health care. I am an ophthalmologist and throughout my life I have considered that as a professional dedicated to healing others, it is my responsibility to have an open mind and to look for any additional tools that may help our patients, even if I have not mastered these techniques. For this reason I have always welcomed help from professionals in other fields of expertise.

I have enjoyed a relatively healthy life and being 58 years old, I am grateful that I have not suffered from any chronic illnesses and do not take any medications. However, over the past few years, my back progressively worsened. I have a familial, inherited spinal stenosis and 1 month ago underwent an 8-hour surgical decompression and fusion with instrumentation to correct this. During surgery and the initial postoperative period, I had a catheter in my bladder. Once it was removed, it was obvious it had irritated my prostate and I was having significant difficulty eliminating. Day and night I was tormented with a frequent urgency that came approximately every 1 to 1 and a half hours. I could not sleep well and felt very tired. With your knowledge and compassionate care, I am back to normal after only a few sessions. I avoided systemic medications and their unwanted side effects.

Again, I want to express my deepest gratitude for your invaluable help in my journey back to good health!

Best regards,
